futureproof production,

100% circular

At Masq, we are committed to creating a sustainable future. By sourcing our own raw materials and employing a unique patented RCB production technology, we ensure that all PVC waste generated during the manufacturing process is 100% recycled into new base materials. These materials are then reintegrated into the production of new Masq wall panels, creating a closed-loop system. With zero waste production, we proudly demonstrate our dedication to environmental preservation.

sustainable energy

Not only are our products 100% circular internally, but we also prioritise the use of sustainable energy. We are excited to share that we have installed an impressive 5,600 square meters of solar panels on our premises. This means that our operations are powered by renewable energy, reducing our carbon footprint and contributing to a greener planet.

RCB[®] patented Rigid Core Board Technology

Thanks to our patented RCB technology, where the coex-stability layer is co-extruded with the premium PVC onto the base plate, our tiles & panels retain their shape after installation and we can guarantee top-of-the-range quality. This results in an exceptionally strong fixation of the multicoloured film and the base plate, even after years of contact with water.

Our advanced RCB technology allows us to produce lighter and higher-quality panels, which not only reduces the CO₂ footprint but also makes them more environmentally friendly. In addition, we are proud to say that our panels are made in Belgium, further reducing their CO₂ footprint.
